Relocation of 7th NVA Division

5. Preliminary interrogation of a North Vietnamese Army (NVA) [redacted]

25X

25X

[redacted] has provided fresh insight into the present organization and disposition of the 7th NVA Division.

6. The captive indicated that elements of the 7th Division's 141st Regiment participated in the action on 11 July which, according to MACV, cost the attacking force 144 killed compared with GVN losses of 13 killed and 54 wounded. [redacted] claimed that the 7th Division has been reorganized under the new name "F-5," and that its three subordinate regiments--the 52nd, 141st, and 165th--have been redesignated the 145th, 147th, and 149th, respectively.

7. According to the captive, elements of the 7th Division are currently deploying from Tay Ninh Province to the Phuoc Long - Binh Long Province area. [redacted] the 147th (formerly the 141st), is reportedly located in the immediate vicinity of An Loc and plans to conduct another attack on the Binh Long provincial capital in the near future.

II. POLITICAL DEVELOPMENTS IN SOUTH VIETNAM

1. Following a full day of debate, the Provisional National Assembly disregarded the recommendations of its special committee on elections and voted to approve the Thieu-Ky presidential ticket. In the same session it disqualified General Duong Van Minh--again contrary to the special committee's recommendations--and also disqualified six other slates. In a show of antigovernment sentiment, the special committee had recommended on 17 July that Thieu and Ky be disqualified because they have not resigned their positions as chief of state and premier.

[REDACTED]
[REDACTED] With Minh now definitely out of the race, Thieu, Tran Van Huong, and Phan Khac Suu emerge as the major contenders among the final total of 11 candidates.

Thich Tam Chau

2. Moderate Buddhist leader Thich Tam Chau and head of the Vietnamese Army Buddhist Chaplains Corps Thich Tam Giac claim that they have lost face with their followers because of Premier Ky's action in taking second place to Thieu. Both had previously voiced a preference for Ky--Chau with considerable vitriol against Thieu--and in so doing had lost prestige and influence with their supporters.

[REDACTED]
[REDACTED] In an apparent attempt to avoid further committing himself, Chau has now announced that he is going to Malaysia on 19 July for a Buddhist festival and will be out of the country until after the elections. He urged Buddhists to participate in the elections, but did not recommend any particular candidate.
